Status of Aging and Disability Resource Centers (ADRCs)

Overview

Historically, Kansas has been slow to implement the ADRCs concept, but has moved at warp speed over the last year and a half.

Started with two pilot sites- one in Hays and also in Wichita

Statewide ADRCs opened on November 1, 2012

Activities expand to conduct functional Level of Care for Medicaid waivers (PD, FE, TBI) beginning January 1, 2013

Website is: www.ksadrc.org

What are ADRCs?

- Aging and Disability Resource Centers (ADRCs) are welcoming and accessible places where individuals can obtain information, advice and assistance in locating services.
- The ADRC will be available to individuals of all ages, disabilities and income levels.
- The ADRC shall serve as a resource for both individuals eligible for publicly-funded services and supports and individuals with private resources.
- The focus of the ADRC is to serve as a primary entry to services, a one-stop shop approach to accessing home and community-based long-term care services and institutional care.
- The ADRC shall ensure all individuals have access to information, assistance, referral, assessment and options counseling services.
- The ADRC shall assist individuals in making their KanCare or PACE selection choice.

Key Features

- Through a Request For Proposal (RFP) process, we established a contract for a statewide ADRC.
- Contractor will provide state-wide comprehensive call and walk-in center and is capable of making warm transfers to local ADRC sites as well as other agencies. The contractor subcontracted with other agencies to provide services at the local level.

- Multiple staff at each ADRC site will be able to screen customers for the need for Options Counseling.
- KDADS will provide standardized training to staff at the ADRCs. Pilot effective from March 2013-December 2013, participation is voluntary

- Delay in initial start date, Jan 1, 2013, is to ensure the roll-out is not only efficient, but effective.
